

COMBOBOX

Combobox lets users choose one option from a list in a dropdown menu. It works well for lists of more than four choices when displaying them could clutter up the interface. The select component should:

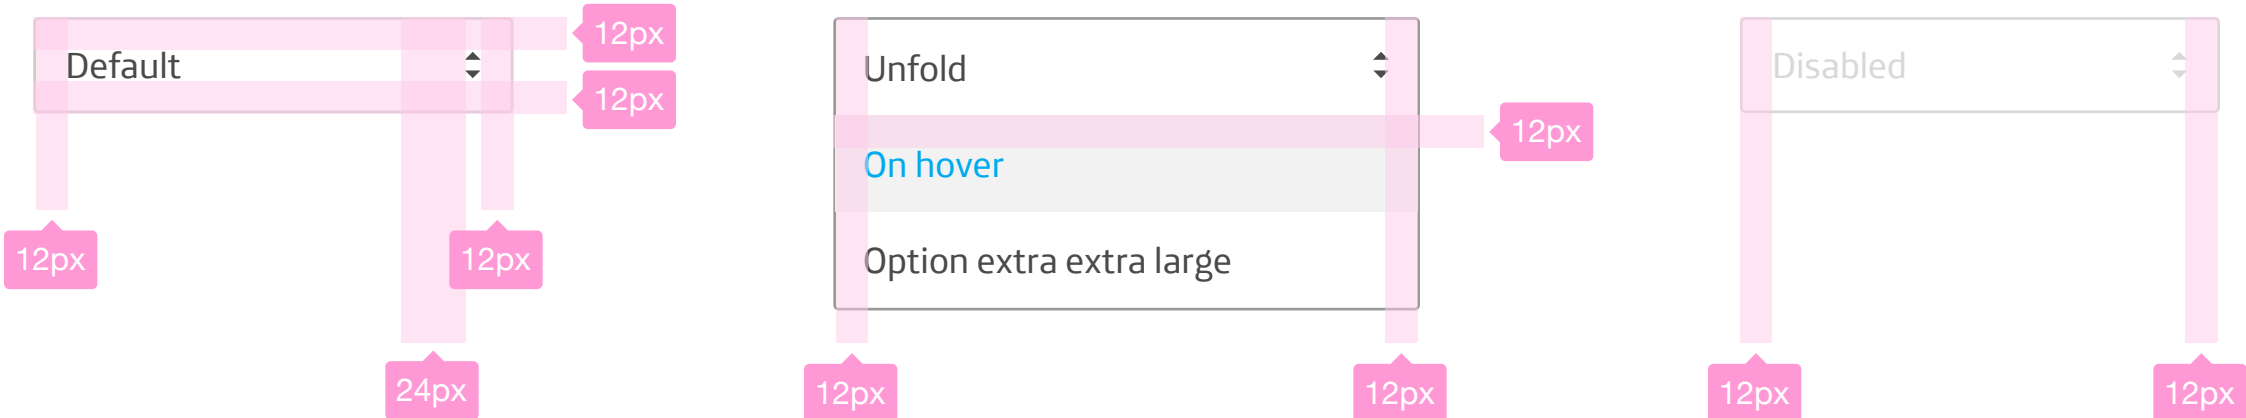

- List items within the menu alphabetically or some other logical order so users can easily find the selection they need.
- Provide a label to clearly identify the content being presented in the drop down menu.
- Have a default option selected, where possible.
- Have a placeholder option with the text “Select” if there is no logical default option.
