LINK

Links are used primarily as a navigational element. Links may also change what or how data is displayed (view more, show all). If the action taken by the user will change or manipulate data, use a button.

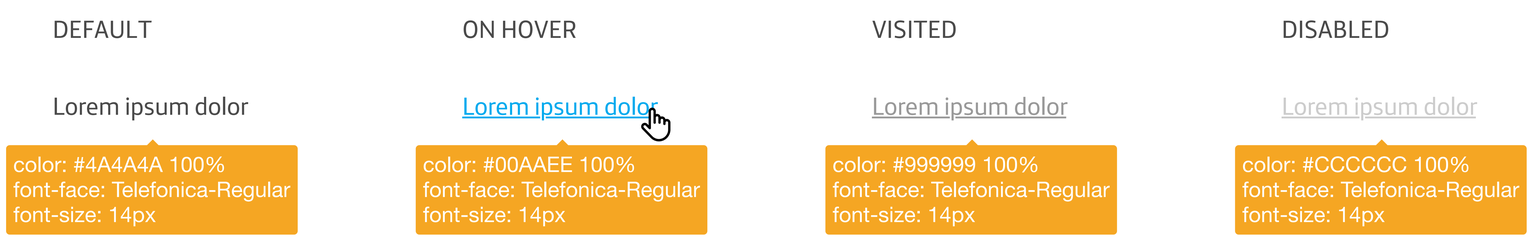
- Links should be three words or less.
- Text should be consistent with the title of the intended destination, avoid the web address itself.

States

These are the different states you can find links.

Anatomy

SPECIFICATIONS



Examples

SANKEY CHART

They are developed to represent changes in network structure over time. Values are represented with blocks on each axis. The height of a block represents the size of the cluster... read more

Functions:
- Comparison
- Correlation
- Distribution
- Trend over time